

VICTORY FOR "WETS".

JUDGE WHITTLE DELIVERS HIS OPINION IN THE ROANOKE CASE.

Roanoke, Va., March 9.—(Special.)—The Circuit Court here yesterday afternoon, and hundreds were in the hallways and outside the court-house to learn the opinion of Judge Whittle in the local-option election contest. Nearly all the prominent leaders of the "wets" and "drys" were present, and when Officer Vaughn rapped for order all was expectancy in the court-room. Judge Whittle then began reading his opinion, which was of some length.

Not well founded.

He reviewed the history of the case, denying that the Circuit Court had jurisdiction, and cited authorities and gave reasons for his opinion. He said that the proceedings were not "wets" and "drys" were present, and when Officer Vaughn rapped for order all was expectancy in the court-room. Judge Whittle then began reading his opinion, which was of some length.

was arraigned before United States Commissioner Rush here yesterday upon a warrant charging him with counterfeiting. He was released upon a hearing, as the case was not substantially made, but it is said that a second charge will be preferred against him for the same kind of offense. The evidence in this case was much stronger than it was in this case. Young White is a very reckless boy, and doubtless his course will lead him into serious trouble.

Your correspondent has just learned that William A. Donaldson, formerly of this place, died in Laurel county, Kentucky, a short time since. Mr. Donaldson is remembered by our people, and they will all regret to hear of his death. There is some building going on in Clinton and vicinity, and the death of Mr. Donaldson is remembered by our people, and they will all regret to hear of his death.

DR JONES'S CLOSING DISCOURSE.

Dr. Jones, Brookes and Hope to Preach Later.

Reception in Honor of Miss Preston.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA, March 9.—(Special.)—Rev. Carter Helm Jones, of Louisville, Ky., who has been holding services with the students during the past ten days, preached his closing sermon here last night. In his discourse he is eloquent, pathetic, logical, and earnest.

Dr. John A. Brookes will preach two sermons at the public hall on Sunday, the "Evidences of Christianity."

Dr. M. D. Hope, of Richmond, will deliver two sermons here upon the same subject later on.

Mr. Malvern Patterson, of Richmond, is still in the Sunny South, with his bride, Miss Juanita Mangle, of the University.

PEASANT LIFE IN DENMARK.

A Land of Old Time Flavors and of Bountiful Harvest.

Wherever it is possible the pieces of furniture are in pairs, and in exactly corresponding positions. I have even heard of a worthy old peasant who wished to buy two pianos, not because his daughters played quartets, but simply in order to have them match. The chaos of a modern interior is almost unknown. The owners of order with holy horror. Frequently the sides of the room are lined with wooden benches extending from one end of the fireplace to the other. They bring to mind the benches the ages tell of in the halls of the ancient vikings, the high seats of the "husband" referred to before, exactly corresponding in use and spirit to the chief seat of those sea rovers of old. Such an old time flavor about everything makes it easy to believe one is not in this nineteenth century, but in a land where "time has stood still."

The daily food of the Danish peasant, while coarse, is nourishing and plentiful. The commonest articles are porridge of various sorts, salt meat, cheese and black bread, and beer and aqua vite are drunk by the men. At great feasts, such as christenings, weddings and funerals, the quantity of food and drink consumed is enormous. A writer on the Danish peasantry tells of a wedding feast at which a hundred persons assisted in the kitchen and at the table. The preparations began over a week beforehand, and the festivities lasted several days. On such an occasion it is considered a great disgrace for the waiting girls, daughters and friends of the family, to allow a plate to remain unfilled, and the guests are as eager to bring about such a catastrophe as to prevent it. At the first rap of the spoon or the fork on the plate half a dozen rustic Hebes run to repair the fault. At funeral feasts there is a sober enjoyment of the good things provided, but the appetite is none the less keen. As the English peasants probably live better than the corresponding class in any other country in Europe.—Outlook.

Macaulay's Rhyming.

The English Illustrated Magazine contains some lines written by Lord Macaulay for his little niece and illustrating what a macaulay of long ago called "The Tom side of Macaulay." For the historian and poet was Tom to many people, and a Tom full of good nature and fun. The author of the article says:

"This poem, written by my father was sent to a holiday at his family home in Somersetshire, and much occupied in fishing, of which he was very fond. One day he took a little girl out with him, as a special treat for her, and he found that she regarded the whole proceeding with horror, and she explained to him that she would be married in a short time, and he became dependent threw the ring into the fire and obtained a bottle of champagne. The girl, however, followed him, and as he attempted to drink the contents of the bottle, she dashed the bottle from his hand. He is a native of Virginia, but his friends are keeping his name a secret, and his real intentions are unknown."

He Threw the Ring Into the Fire and Resorted to Supposed Landlady.

LEXINGTON, VA., March 9.—(Special.)—The attempted suicide of a student here yesterday afternoon is said to be a "fake," as the young man claims that the bottle contained wine; but the facts in the case are as follows: A young man who is attending the Washington and Lee University had a ring married to him by a young lady, and she explained to him that she would be married in a short time, and he became dependent threw the ring into the fire and obtained a bottle of champagne. The girl, however, followed him, and as he attempted to drink the contents of the bottle, she dashed the bottle from his hand. He is a native of Virginia, but his friends are keeping his name a secret, and his real intentions are unknown.
